

Building Bridges
The Perinatal Addictions Prevention Project partners with healthcare providers, drug and alcohol treatment services, and state agencies like the New Jersey Department of Children and Families. We can offer you the opportunity to build a healthy future for your patients, your school, and your community.

The Perinatal Addictions Prevention Project (PAPP) is a statewide substance abuse screening, prevention, and education initiative funded by the NJ Department of Health and Senior Services. In the South Jersey region, the program is administered by the Southern New Jersey Perinatal Cooperative.

*Perinatal Addictions
Prevention Project*

A program of the Southern New Jersey
Perinatal Cooperative

About the Program

The Perinatal Addictions Prevention Project provides professional education, professional training, and consumer education about the effects of alcohol and drug use during pregnancy. Substance use during pregnancy multiplies the chances of low birth weight, developmental problems, and miscarriage. To ensure pregnant women receive appropriate assistance, the program also helps health professionals implement a prenatal screening tool for the early identification and treatment of high-risk behaviors.
